THE FASHIONS.

Boston Notions for the Ladies and Others.
Hints Regarding Late Styles and Novel-

Yellow in any number of tints, ranging from primrose to citron yellow tinged with green, will be fashionably worn this summer, not only in gowns out in bonnets and gloves.

- A table cover which one can take t the country or seashore and ornament the plain tables of the hotel room, is a quare or figured repped cretonne, bortered with a band of plain sateen, and Inished on the edge with worsted tas-sels. A cloth of cretonne has a bouquet of rosebuds on an olive ground, and the band which makes the border plain olive satteen
- Large floral designs in wash materi-Paris milliners are using etamine, very largely for bonnets. All sorts of devices are painted or embroidered upon the soft material.
- Gold, silver, bronzo, pearl, crystal and jet embroideries are used even more lavishly than ever before for fronts, panels, plastrons and sleeves Foundation skirts are made of silk,
- mohair and sattren All styles of India silks for summer wear are exceedingly lustrous, especially in black, and are thirty-five inches
- Mide Delicate and pretty chamberys, in pale blue, ecru, reseda and rose, are embroidered over by machinery in small diamonds, a white crescent and any black moons, dots, a leaf and
- Cleam velvet hats, trimmed with the cream white wings of doves and sea gulls, will be much worn by children. High colors and large patterns have gone out, it is said, in Paus and Londen, and quiet grays and browns have taken their place. Gray tulle is even employed for evening wear, but there are still dull shades of red to be seen and delicate combinations of pink and blue, and pink, cream and pale gold. This last is a very distinguished combi-
- The favorite colors in Parisian millinery for early spring are black and brown, the brown distinguished by a tinge of red, the choice shapes coming in Milan, Dunstable and satin braids Some of the new fancy straws are min-gled with fine silver and gold cord, giving an air of gayety to the demuies bonnet in black, grav or brown
- It is the fancy of the season to mass all trimmings high on the front of bonnets giving an air of distinction to the wearer, whether she be short or tali This method is becoming to an oval face, improves a round one, but emphasizes unpleasantly one that is long and sharp.
- Parisian women discard bonnet strings
 Delicate India silks have pale tinted grounds with chintz designs in marked ontrast of color
- Banana yellow kid gloves are quite For elegant wear for stylish and dressy toilers for elderly women, nothing can surpass in grace and beauty the trained evening dresses of black lace, in Spanish, French, escurial
- Spanish guipure and other rich nets and edgings, made up over black foundation silk and satin

 Some of the soutache braids for trimming are nearly an inch wide, and have the novel effect of the strongest relief when placed on the material, by being sewed on one edge; for example, the flower or foliage of a plant is done
- in this way, the stems and flat leaves are laid on with narrow braid

 The leading model for children' dresses will be the voked waist attached to a moderately full tucked skirt, and the single skirt with hem and tucks will be seen instead of draperied overskirts and polonases. The princess style, however, will be extensively used, as it is universally becoming and convenient, and is capable of so many variations.—Boston Budget.
 - FARM LABORERS.

The Judicious Employment of Hired Help on the Farm the Best Economy. There are many indications to show that for a year or two to come a judicious employment of as much labor as can be conveniently managed will prove the best economy. Thousands of farmers have become discouraged. They are either selling, renting or otherwise putting their farms where a lessened product will be probable The consumption of food products is in-oreasing all the more rapidly because prices are low. It is only a question of time when the demand will equal our probable supply. We rely largely now on the demand from England for food products in the marketing of our surplus. Within infteen years this country will have added to its own population a larger number of people than now inhabit all the British isles, and their food consumption will, we may reasonably hope, be in still larger proportion. Long before this time the increase in food products will come from the improvement in fallming, securing a greater crop per acre, rather than from an increase in the area under oultivation These conclusions point directly to the economy of greater expenditures in the direction of farm improvement That there have been times when such expenditures could not be afforded in competition with the cheap virgin soil of the West is quite certain. The poor tarming which has existed in this country has been almost a necessity, contraining those who would wish to do better as well as the naturally shiftless and lazy It is one of the reasons why so many enterprising young men have abandoned a pursuit where the more rapid exhaustion of the soil by running over large areas of land with much hard work were the conditions of suc cess. It is only when the conditions favor good farming that men who would like to take pride in it will engage in the business.—N Y Herald

-Horses having extra toes on the inner side of the fore feet are occisionally met with in South America, according to Dr. Ihreng, who suggests that they may be the remnant of an old native race of horses which escaped the notice of the early settlers lot the personality of car judge be dropped.—Review. Considering that the REPUBLICAN has had nothing to say about "the personality of candidates" save in terms of commendation, and that the Review has only had its abuse of a Republican candidate shut off by the friends of its own, the gall exhibited in the squib quoted should certainly capture the blue ribbon over any and all competitors.

Why? The question is frequently asked ability as a lawyer and of his many good and amiable qualities as a neighbor and a gentleman, and we have no desire to withdraw or modify a single word of what we have said in that regard. And yet the Republicans who refuse to support him for judge have abundant reason for their action. Leaving out or the count Mr. Ewing's connection with the Buckingham controversy of last fall, Republicans cannot forget that he has been all his life a Democrat of the strictest sect, who has been active, persistent and partisan in his Democracy, and who has not hesitated to make his views and preferences known--no matter what per sonal friend of his might be a candidate on the other side. If he has ever supported a Republican for office when there was a Democrat in the field against him we do not know it. Of conrec, it is his right to do just as he pleases in the matter of voting, and it has uniformly pleased him to vote the Democratic ticket. He has not hesitated to say frankly on more than one occasion, to his Republican friends who solicited his support, that he would be much pleased to give them his vote if it were not for the fact that they were Republicans. Now we submit whether that which is gravy for the female aquatic bird is not also gravy for her male consort. The mere fact that he is running for a judicial office does not cut much figure in the public mind was only last fall exceedingly solicit-has rejoiced over Republican defeats, along with the other Democrats, and celebrated as a Democratic victory in a Republican district. All this being true, and the Republicans having three good and true men of their own to vote for, it is not heretofore.

Interesting Facts About General Grant's Illness Just Coming to Light.

DOCTORS DISAGREE.

Was It Dr. Newman's Water Baptism Dr. Shrady's Brandy Injection That Made the General Better?

Will Fight It Out On the Cancer Line If It Is Going to Take All

NEW YORK, May 80,-From a perfectly trustworthy source it is learned that in October and again in March General Grant's physicians, thinking there might be one chance in a thousand that the cancer diagnoses were wrong, placed the patient under special treatment for another disease. The result was bad, and fully confirmed the propriety of treatment for cancer. At a recent consultation Dr. Sands expressed the opinion that death will occur in about three months; Dr. Shrady says within six months. The disease is spreading slowly but surely.

On the April morning, when the General was supposed to be dying, Dr. Newman said to Mrs. Grant:
"It is all over. I will baptize him."
If went quickly to another room, got a bowl, filled it with water, came back, dipped his hand in the water, and said:

"I thank you." Then turning to his family: "I bless you all." To Dr. Newman he added: "I had intended to attend to this myself."

Meanwhile the physicians consulted in the corner of the room, and Dr. Shrady determined to inject brandy. This treatment revived the General, and when Dr. Newman carned is goral, from the part ticket is being circulated to day, bearing the names of Ewing, Craig answered." But Dr. Shrady responded: I think it was the brandy."

Dr. Douglas said yesterday that he had not been at the General's side so much any night for a month past as he was Wednesday night. The patient only slept about three hours altogether, owing to pains in the throat and ear. The doctor thinks the pains were caused by the General getting chilled during his ride.

MEXICO'S DAY.

The Sister Republic Outdoes Herself at the Expesition

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 30 .- Mexico nas done nothing in a half-hearted way at the Exposition, but yesterday she surpassed herself in the brilliancy with which she celebrated her day. All the public officials and city societies had been invited to participate, and heartily warning by night plan has been responded. Governor Mcknery and his staff, and all officials, consuls, etc., left the foot of Canal street on the steamer Jesse K. Bell shortly after noon. Com-missioner Zarate, of Mexico, received the whole party at the Alhambra, their mineral building, and proceeded thence to the Music Hall.

An address of welcome was delivered by Major E. A. Burke, with responses in Spanish by J. T. Dezamacoma, the Mexican Consul, and General Zarate, Commissioner-General for Mexico. An ode to Mexico by J. N. Maynard and an oration on Mexico by Hon. J. G. R. Pitkin, concluded the ceremonies in the hall The audience proceeded to the Mexican exhibit, where an address was delivered by Dr. P. Ordellas, Secretary of the Mexmade of life size portraits of Washington and Hiddigo —liberators of sister repub-lics—after which the Commissioner-Gengat of Mexico and the Mexican officials eld a reception at their headquarters. A grand pyrotechnical display was given

The report, while gencrally accepted as true, has not as yet been officially confirmed. At the mills of the American Iron Works and Dilworth, Porter & Co., the workmen are quite con-ident that the scale will be signed before the close of the week and stoppage averted. Oliver Brothers & Phillips will probably stand against the scale.

PITTSBURGH, PA., May 30 .- At "a late hour yesterday afternoon Clark's Iron Works Company signed the scale. It is now thought that a majority of the mills will follow in quick succession, and that at least a portion of those now strongly resisting will to-day accede to the demands of the workmen.

But the war, on behalf of the Union, was not an expetition of conquest conceived in the heart of some ambitious king, or military go mages below the sound gory in the military go may eseking to coin his ewing lory in the military go may man wretchedness, but the practical assertion of right and power of the military of the people of the United States, through their legal otherests execute the constitution and laws of the land against any force that dere lift a rebellions arm. It was a mighty war waged by patriots in defense of hierty, a rabellion brought on in the interest of slavery, and crushed by the bloof of a liberty loving people, to demonstrate that a "government of the people, by the people, and for the pople" could not be overthrown either by foreign intringue or demestic strife, to prove to tyrants that the people have not only the wisdom and fortinde to suffere them on the held of battle, even at the cannon's mouth It was the declaration of the supreme antherity of the

It was a war carried on by nen whose patrictism gays them the firmness to the at the point of the bayonet rather than see their country become the death bed of Freedom and the graveyard of Republican Liberty.

The southern rebellion was the creature of elavery. That accursed institution, which our fathers believed would perish in the helds of local legislation, had assumed control of the federal government, and having entrenched itself behind the bulwarks of freedom, it menneed with death, all who refused to bend the supplicant kines to its arrogant pretensions. It threatened a dissolution of the Union against any party disloding it from power. In 1850, when its opposition elected Abraham Luncoln to the presidential chair, and the serpent was hurled from the high places of the nation, the infiniated monster bankrupted our treasury spiked our gus and dismantled our ships. It departed from the high places of the nation, the infiniated covering it with the slime of its own pollution it coiled its stupendous folds on the plans of the south and if the world with its appalling hise.

A thrill of terror shot through the nervee of patricism, and.

The and so cumningly executed that the new a pinistration entored upon the discharge of i ministration entered upon the discharge of its duties without an army, without money and without credit! With our forts in the hands of the insurgents, our country divided by party, and one-third of its people in open rebellion, we presented to the world a picture of helplessness which might have bailled the sagacity of Hannibal, or appalled the genius of Napoleon.

The weakness of the republic was then felt for the first time. We had gained our independence but only with the powerful aid of The weakness of the republic was then felt for the first time. We had gained our independence but only with the powerful aid of france. We had defeated Groat Britain in the war of 1813, but that occurred when England was engaged in a life and death struggle with the most extractdinary military genius the world had ever seen.

We might have gained our independence without foreign help and maintained it against the combined nations of the world; but could we crush an insurrection of our own citizens, a rebel,ion comprising eleven millions of people, more colossal in its proportions and ex-hauthees in its resources than over massuma beneats the gigantic waves of monarchy or fallen before the Damasous blade of despotsim? The kings of the Oid World said "No." The people said "Yes." Brave patriots trembled with iear; grave statesmen shook their heads in doubt. The aristocrats of England and the autocrats of Continental Europe declared our system of government weak, unable to meet the omergency of a civil war. The liberty loving toilers of the Oid World believed this republic to be their only star of hope. Would it fall forever from the constellation of Freedom? Such a momentous issue, the people of earth never saw before; perhaps will not er see again. The freedom of mankind was staked on the throw of the die; the destiny of republican governments everywhere was hanging in the balance, a gossamer might turn the scale, the cycs of helpless humanity worse resting on this Republic. The crowned heads of Europe wore watching every move with quaking hearts and trembling discoms, lest we should succeed, while their hapless subjects were gizing with tear-dimmed eyes, and a hope akin to despair, lest we should succeed, while their hapless subjects were gizing with tear-dimmed eyes, and a hope akin to despair, lest we should iail. The cloud of rebellion cast a shadow like midulght, as it rolled in dark and swelling masses across the sky of the Union. The final battle borween Liberty and Slavery was inevitable, and brave men with throbbing bearts and quivering ips said, "Let it come." But the hopes of kings and the fears of the people were alike vain. The smoke of battle had searcely cleaned the sky above the ruins of bumter, ere the millions of the north were in arms against treason. Party lines were forgotten, boughs and Lincola, opponents for the prosidincy, were coheagues for their country, rivals for office they were allies for humanity; divided in peace, they were united in war, and stepping like brothers from the low patterm of party to the high plane of patients, and stepping like brothers from the low patterm of party to the high plane of patients, they declared there was no middle ground, their were only patriots and traiters instantly, like magic, from the coasts of New England, and the gold vines of California; from the pintries of the North, and the valiets of the Bast and the taims of the West; from the mountains and plains, the hills and prairies, from the rivers to the linkes, every street, and overy highway, was crowded with citizen soldiers, marching begent the folds of the Star-Spangled Banner, and keeping step to the unist of tho Union, singing "Down with the Traitors and up with the Star-Ying the whoel in the pilot house of the Ollon, rang another

"How care, how beautiful comes on The hour of Peace when War is gone; When mourcing millions cease to weep, And storms have so blood themselves to sleep." These men watched and guarded their country s welfare with the same anxious care and tonder solicitude they did their homes. When the scrpent of treason colled his crucking folds around the vitals of the nation, they rushed to their country s relier with the same intrepidity and desporation a father springs to the rescue of his imperied child.

They were called of heaven to strike the shaceles from the last slave, whose bondage disginced our mation. They were the immertal defenders of I therty who expleded, torever, the dogma of the divine right of Kings; who, sofring the sword of patriotism, and dipping it into the ink of treason rewrote, on the explaints body of slavery the truth, that all men are equal, and sealing the declaration with their blood, gave to the world a new birth of Freedor.

"Oh! if there be on th's earthly sphere, A bood, an othering lleaven holds doer, I'ls the last libetion that Liberty draws, From the heart that bleeds and breaks in her cause."

Twenty years has passed since the clive branch of peace was brought back to the ark of the Union. Seven hundred thousand of the members of the Grand Army of the Republic perished in that awail war. Their bodies have niled the of read in that awail war. Their bodies have niled the of read in the theory of the Gurtius of the the opining has closed over their droach and the opening has closed over their droach that whose all inderous tongue chall over dare to sully the memory of their fains. A million voteran soldiers survived the tremendous borror of that frightful era of death. Praises, like rays of sunshine, have falled in showers of glory, on the beads of the living, and the crowns of the dead. Their blood has waitered the roots and strengthened the trunk of the Tree of Liberty. There it is leading the tree of the path of the Tree of Liberty. There is it is loaday, standing on the bunks of the river of the Republic, uninjured by the tempost and strong or for the storm—the Paladiumn of Liberty: "How sleep the brave who sisk to rest, By all their country's wishes bleet; Whon spring with down ingers cold,

"How sleep the brave who sink to res By all their country's wishes blost; Whon spring with dewy ingers cold, Returns to dock their hallowed mold Sho there shall dress a sweeter sod. And Freedom shall a while repair To dwell a weeping hermit there."
I'nlike any other war in the annals of the stets lessings have fallen alike on the victors and the vanquished—on the loyal solder whe shed his blood to maintain the integrity of hy country, and the heedless robel who risked hille to destroy mankind's most powerful an enlightened government. The slave has obtained his treaden, and the predical son ha onlightoned government. The slave has obtained his freedom, and the predigal son has joyfully returned to his father's house, humbled in pride but wiser from experience. May he never digrace the almost divine forgiveness of a magnanimous people, who substituted parder for death and bener for punishment.

A FIGHT FOR LIFE. How a Flock of Hungry Ravens Attacked and Nearly Killed a Dog.

The Echo de la Fronticre, a journal of the Department of the North, recently currence in that part of the country. It was to the effect that some ravens that were starving during the snowy weather of January had pounced upon Alida R. Handy. a dog and devoured him. Wishing to Sallie M. Anna R. Murphy. My dog, which was a long-haired Scotch terrier, was playing with some other dogs in a field adjoining the works, when he was attacked by some ravens that were doubtless famished. He was about two hundred feet from the building when the workmen saw him surrounded by the birds. There were at least one hundred of the latter in the field, but only about thirty of them had attacked him. These at first surrounded him on every side, but soon divided into two bands. Some flew in front of the dog, others behind him, pushing him forward. Those in front of him rose to a height of about six feet and swooped down upon him, and always struck him in the same place. The dog, which had at first tried to defend himself, endeavored to escape, but the ravens in front and behind prevented him, and kept continually facerating him with their bills. They had put out one of his eyes, had made a deep wound in his neck, and would certainly have picked him to pieces upon the spot had sent to his relief by the workmen.

ravens, far from flying away, remained near the earth, rather aggressive than time at the spot whence their prev had work with the poor faithful dog, which had to be killed two days afterward, on account of his wounds. This account gives a striking example
